FROM ME TO WE...

A Game of Intergenerational Discovery

Overview:

- This game will help you discover fun activities to do with family members or friends.
- Two people are required for this game.

How to Play:

On your own:

1. Each person takes a “What do you like to do” sheet (see attached).
2. Choose and circle those activities that you like to do. Choose as many as you like.

Together:

3. With your partner, fill out a “What would you like to do together” sheet, and circle those activities you would like to do together.
4. Select three of the activities which excite you both the most, and cut them out.
5. Glue these three activities into your “Fun things we will do together soon” certificate (attached). This will help you remember these activities and plan to do them soon.
6. Hang this certificate up when you get home!

The Penn State Intergenerational Program

Other Resources Available from the Penn State Intergenerational Program:

Intergenerational Activities Sourcebook

A new resource for educators, human service practitioners, recreation specialists, community development specialists, and others committed to bringing the generations together. (Kaplan & Hanhardt)
($10 per copy; pub code: AGRS-91)

Developing an Intergenerational Program in Your Early Childhood Care and Education Center

Easy to use information on effective practices for finding, training, and involving senior adult volunteers in early childhood programs. (Kaplan, Duerr, Whitesell, Merchant, Davis, & Larkin)
($10 per copy; pub code: AGRS-89)

Grandparents Raising Grandchildren: Doubly Stressed, Triply Blessed

An introduction to the pressing issues and concerns faced by families with grandparents raising grandchildren. Program set includes a facilitator's guidebook, a video (VHS - 16:55 min.), and fact sheets. (Kaplan, Handhardt & Crago)
($30 per copy; pub code: AGRS-84)

Future Festival: An Intergenerational Approach to Community Participation

The "Futures Festival" is a special event designed to engage people of all ages in constructive dialogue about community development issues. It is geared primarily toward youths and older adults, two population groups whose opportunities to participate in community activities are typically limited. (Kaplan)
($.95 per copy; pub code: UI364)

Generation Celebration

This intergenerational 4-H project consists of six sessions designed to help young people and older adults become more aware of stereotypical attitudes toward aging, and to get to know and enjoy each other as individuals. (Scholl, Kaplan, and Hanhardt).
($1.90/Member's Guide; pub code: JO71A. $2.70/Leader's Guide; pub code: JO71C)
