

Dead people

Break students into groups of four. Two students “play dead” the other two students must use their bodies to act out a short scene, the “dead players secretly help the puppeteers with movement. Then have the pairs switch.

Tips for teaching: Stress that nobody should get hurt. The “dead people” should never let go completely of their bodies, just make their movements look convincing. Also the puppeteers should never let them fall.

Idea from: “Improv Games for Children and adults” Bob Bedore